

Customer Case Study

Lenta Business Centres

Spheretech Ltd specialise in designing and installing heating, cooling and ventilation equipment into offices, retail, schools, universities, medical practices and factories throughout the UK.

One such Client, Lenta Business Centres sought assistance from Spheretech Ltd to retrofit air conditioning into one of their prestigious Central London offices. Combining the old with the new, Gloucester Place Business Centre in London's West End, is an elegant, bright, 5-storey period building, which perfectly combines Edwardian features with state of the art IT facilities for its tenants.

As experts in retrofit solutions in buildings of this nature, the system Spheretech designed and installed incorporated a two-pipe heat recovery system, providing simultaneous heating and cooling. This, along with the small footprint of the equipment, helped reduce the installation time and space needed for the job.

The installation presented many challenges to Spheretech, whose detailed plans ensured successful project completion within the timeframe and without any disruption to the day-to-day business of Lenta or its Clients. Spheretech' four-man team had a four-week time limit to complete the removal of the old system and the installation and commissioning of the new one. The final aesthetics and look of the completed job were as important as the performance of the equipment itself.

"The high operating efficiencies of the design and kit chosen, meant the building's Part L constraints were easily achieved" David Knibbs Spheretech Ltd

David Knibbs adds

"The end result was that Lenta are now able to offer its Clients energy efficient, modern and comfortable working environment in the heart of the Capital that is also future protected against building regulations and environmental legislation."
