Company Profile

Spheredtech Ltd design, specify and install cooling, heating and heat recovery ventilation systems throughout the UK. From the smallest single office, to mission critical server rooms, to whole office blocks or factory shop floors, each customer and site is treated professionally and individually.

As an independent company, Spheredtech will only provide impartial and practical recommendations, using and being approved partners and installers from only quality manufacturers.

Spheredtech Ltd Company Profile

All engineers are qualified to the latest standards and regulations. Our work meets with all energy efficiency standards and F-Gas regulations required by your business to meet Government and building regulations.

Our technical team are highly proficient at designing the right climate solution for the right application, including low cost evaporative cooling solutions that help remove heat and reduce energy consumption which are particularly effective for data centres, server rooms, manufacturing and food production areas.

Our nationwide team of service & maintenance field engineers are backed 24/7 by a dedicated service and support team, offering a range of service and breakdown packages, from single annual visits, to critical response.

A log of every customer's installation and service history is stored in our computer asset register and updated continuously from the field service reports provided by our engineers. This asset system enables us to build scheduled service visits programmes and also provides trend information, which can then be monitored and advised to the client.
